When I first had the thought to help spread awareness to senior decision makers and corporate leaders on the potential impacts of Bitcoin and specifically its blockchain network, I considered developing a short course on the subject as a way that would be the most helpful. I sat down and came up with a series of seven or eight slides on a PowerPoint deck where I thought it had all the information that can explain everything. I remember being excited and wanting to share and bounce it off a former colleague, Joshua Yip, to capture his perspective. Joshua and I sat down at a café and I proudly took out my iPad to run through the deck. Suffice to say I came crashing back down to reality. That conversation inspired me to write this book, develop a two-day course, and maybe even publish a children's storybook. Remembering how it all began will always make me smile with a sense of disbelief. Thank you, Joshua, I will always be grateful for the spark that you helped ignite.

Once the book is written, it is extremely crucial to have someone critique and edit it before it is even seen by any potential publisher and such. This book greatly benefited from the amazing work of editing done by Brendan Fu. It is funny to think that we met through a shared interest in digital agriculture and even funnier to realize that up to the time of publishing, we have yet to meet in person. I deeply appreciate Brendan's professionalism and valuable insights that ultimately helped enhance the book's message. Your help has immensely improved the quality of this book and I will forever be grateful.

As part of writing this book, I've also had the opportunity to reconnect with former colleagues and peers. They are a few of the most highly respected thought leaders and industry visionaries in their field; I will always be deeply grateful for their sincerity and generosity in sharing their time and perspectives. In this regard, I would like to express my profound and sincere gratitude to Datuk Dr. Mohamed Arif bin Nun, Roshan Thiran, Tan Tze Meng, and Anand Panchalingam for believing in me and for their invaluable contributions and unwavering dedication towards making this book a reality.

I would also like to make a special mention to Roslan Abdul Wahab and again to Roshan Thiran, thank you for sharing your passion and I'm grateful for our collaboration in spreading the awareness. Additionally, I would like to express my sincere appreciation to Dato' Dr. Munirah Looi and Ellery Wee for their kind generosity in helping to facilitate valuable connections within the industry.

In addition to the above, I am deeply thankful to Gan Eng Hann, Walter Ng, and Donna Wong, as well as my close cousins Hilal Adnan, Arisha Adnan, and Haikal Adnan. I really appreciate your time and feedback as it has helped me improve the content and quality of the course material and this book.

My deep appreciation also goes out to my mom and siblings, Rizal, Nina, and Pipa. Thank you for your kindness, generosity, and understanding throughout my journey in writing this book.

I am profoundly grateful for the incredible journey of turning my book into reality, and I recognize that finding the right publisher is an essential part of this process. In this regard, I am truly appreciative of Brian Lew for his incredible generosity in connecting me with Edwin Marsden, the driving force behind Marsden Advisory Resources.

I will always cherish my initial meeting with Edwin, this is where we spent hours delving into the heart of this book. It was during that conversation that a strong connection formed, as we realized that our visions perfectly aligned with the core message of this work. Edwin Marsden, your perspectives and belief in the significance of the topic addressed in this book has been a source of inspiration for me on this journey. Your commitment to spreading the awareness to a wider audience is truly commendable and will always be appreciated. I'm thankful for the opportunity you've given me, Edwin, especially as a first-time author.

I would also like to extend my appreciation to the dedicated team at Marsden Advisory Resources, from the meticulous production process to the final stages of distribution, your hard work and diligence have been instrumental in bringing this book to life. I eagerly look forward to future collaborations with Marsden Advisory Resources; the prospect of continuing to share important perspectives and ideas with the world fills me with excitement and anticipation. Once again, thank you, Brian Lew, Edwin Marsden, and the entire Marsden Advisory Resources team, for turning this effort into reality.

At the same time, I would also like to acknowledge the unique help I received from ChatGPT-4 as part of my research for this book as well as in doing the first rounds of proofreading and editing. Having the AI assistant made me feel like I had seasoned writers and editors behind me to support my efforts; we truly live in unprecedented times and kudos to the people behind this marvel of technology.

Finally, I would like to thank the creator(s) and contributors of Bitcoin as well as its volunteer developer community. Without them, neither this book nor the opportunity for humanity to transcend tyranny through the monetary system would exist. It is not hyperbole to say that you have opened a new path towards a golden age for our species with your continued efforts. Thank you.
